The Verdict. Below we give the verdict of the Coroner's Jury in the case of the man who fell from the cars, the particulars of whose death we furnished last week :

We, the Jury, find from evidence adduced in the case of Marshal Bryan, deceased, that he came to his death by a fall from a train on the Kansas City. St. Joseph & Council Bluffs Railroad, 21 miles North-West from Bigelow Holf County, Mo., on the morning of April 3, 1871.

Cost of Hogs at Large.

MR. EDITOR: I have never carefully calculated it, but the assertion is ventured that the few hogs running at large in Oregon cost five times more than they are all worth. To make a fence to keep out cattle costs something, but to make it hog-proof costs a great deal more, to make it pig-proof is impossible (or seems so). I do not know how many lots there are in town fencedprobably several hundred. The extra fencing to keep out the few hogs costs at breaking in, pige creeping in, open gates, &c., &c., amount to, say, two hundred deliare annualty. Now there are not five handred dollars' worth of hogs running at large in town. My calcula-tion is an under estimate. Look at it; more than twenty-seven bandred dol-lars to keep out less than twe hundred INQUIRER.

Fire in the Upper Bottom.

Mr. Edward Randolph informs us, that during the prevalence of the dry windy weather in the latter part of March, and early part of April, there have been a number of fires in the bottom, doing considerable damage to timber. At one point, he says, the devouring element leaped over the Tarkeo River, and set fire to the trees on the or, has removed his office to the Big opposite shore, and in its onward course Dungan & Kelly, where he will be Renfrow, which was only saved destruction by the timely exertions of the neighbore hastening to Mr. Renfrow's assistance. Mr. Wm. Boyd's house had also caught fire from the burning trees, but was saved without serious damage.

In addition to the above we learn where they have a splendid suit of through Mr. VanVormer, that prairie rooms, that are now being fitted up in fires between Craig and Marrietta and the most approved style. The Lady's Friend, for May, 1871, is a superb number. The steel plate is a beautiful picture of the pride and glory of California -- the matchless Yosemite ing with a piece of fire wood the heavy Valley-with its wonderful towering walls of rock, its waterfalls, and clear stream winding through. Of itself, this caped the punishment he so richly de- is worth many times the price of the number. Then the colored Fashion plate is of unusual interest, as it pre sents us with actual portraits of distinguished personages-the former Prince Imperial of France, the Princess Alexandra, the ex-Empress Eugenic, the Princess Louise-all, of course, attired in the latest style. "The Fisherman," a fine wood-cut, is such a picture as one does not often see; taking hold upon the heart with the weird fascination of its tragic pathes. Music-"That Little Church Around the Corner." The literary matter is very rich, maintaining the high churacter of this magazine. "My Method" is a strikingly original story. The powerful novellette, "One Woman's Experience," is continued, and "A Summer Campaign" is a lively and amusing sketch. Amony the poetical contributors are Etla Weeler, Miriam Earle and Mary J. McCall. In fashions and fancy work, as the ladies well know, this magazine is unexcelled. Price $3.50 a year (which paign, ceemingly resolved to secure the also includes a large steel engraving). Some stabilings and other out-buildings were giving to the farmer much labor in adblown down, while othes were relieved of their roofs.

The day was one of the most disagreeable ever experienced by the traveller on account of the clouds of dust, which rious atorm, rendered traveling not only diskgreeable but exceedingly dangerops.

The eyes suffered much. But we are glad to learn, that so far as heard from, no lives have been light by the storm, neither by man or beast.

Forest City is a very eligible location for a Saw Mill, affording very fine facilities for "lumbering," being easy of access by "rail" to those extensive prairies of the north, east and west, and especially so to the railroad men who are engaged in the construction of railroads in northern Kansas and southern Nebraska, who are pleased to find such a favored spot, in this respect at least. The great auction sale of lumber. advertised by printed posters, will take place at Anderson's mill to-morrow, (Saturday), April 15, 1871. See posters.

A Serious Runaway. Rev. Mr. Boyle, accompanied by his wife and son, as they were driving in a two-horse buggy from Oregon to Savannah, on Tuesday morning, met with a serious accident, that came near resultneighbor, alleging that he wanted it to ing fatally. Before ascending the hill on state road, the other side of Kunkel's Mill, Mr. Boyle got out of the buggy, the sbject of a temporary fit of insanity, leaving his wife in charge of the reins. Just as the team got to the top of the bill, the horses took fright at something or another, and turning back broke the tong and ran down hill at a rapid rate. Mrs. Boyle was violently thrown out of hope that he went there to see about it.

Others are less charitable in their suppositions, and think that a woman is at the bottom of it. It is to be hoped that the mystery may soon clear up.

We believe the disease he died of was contracted by inhaling the misasmic vapors of the slough, near whose banks his resience is located. It is a remarkable fact, that within the last fifteen years nearly a dozen persons have died on this place! thereby abundantly showing the location to be unhealthy. We suggest, that the wislow move her dwelling away from the pestilential va pors of that slough, and thus preserve life. The deceased leaves a widow and five children the former in poor health.
